RULES FOR GASOLINE CRAFT TO LIMIT

Four to Six Second Whistle and Life Preserver for Ench Passenger

With the usual spring preparations for the annual opening of navigation come Uncle Sam's little notices of regulations to all sailors and vessel owners on the great

These little notices have made their appearance during the last few days and al boat owners received them with a little notice attached which explains the penalty which will be inflicted for each offense in ease these orders are violated.

In the case of steam tugs and vessels the restrictions as required are somewhat similar to those issued last year; the only material difference is found in the rules and

Here the changes are many and import-

Each gasoline launch is required by law to have on board at all times a life preserver for each passenger. This law was passed last year as the result of the launch catastrophs in Michigan City harbor, when a launch was run down by one of the larger vessels as it was about to ent across her

This year each launch is required by law to be fitted out with a ship bell of the six inch variety. Each launch will also be required to have on board and in operation an air whistle capable of four to six second blasts for use in time of trouble.

this year and which will no doubt prove a necessity in this region.

CONGRESSMAN FOSS ENDORSED FOR RE-ELECTION

The tenth Congressional District held its convention at Ravenswood on Wednesday afternoon. David H. Jackson of Lake Forest was elected chairman of the convention. Two delegates were elected to attend the National convention that is to be held in Chicago in June.

Tho delegates and their alternates are as follows: Ronald A. Keyss-alternats, John Pope, of Waukegan. James Peasealternate, Carlton Prody.

Ben Miller, of Wankegan, submitted a resolution, indorsing Geo. Edmund Foss for re-election to Congress. The resolution met with the beartiest approval and Mr. Foss was not only recommended for re-election but he was also commended for securing the North Chicago Naval Train-The unanimous and enthusiastic decision of the convention was that Mr. Foss shall be kept in Congress until his friends 172 are ready to give him a position higher up on the ludder.

News reached here today the Congressman Foss, has reported the Naval Approprintion bill to the house. It carries with it an additional million dollars for the 108 North Chiengo Naval Training School. The appropriation will be a valuable one in earrying out the extensive plans of the school which will be the largest of its kind in the world.

NUMBER SALOONS

Fox Lake Village Takes Steps to Limit the Number of Saloons

TWENTY-FIVE SALOONS NOW

Preparing Ordinance Preventing Licensing More Saloons

Another Lake county corporation is planning to limit the number of saloons which may operate within its boundaries. Fox Lake, the lake resort so widely known and which, in the number of saloons for its size was, for years, second only to Highwood, and since the latter's saloons quit business, lends in this distinction.

Fox Lake village officers feel that the place now has all the saloons it can or should support and while they would like to decrease that number they cannot do so. These last requirements are those added yet they are to make it impossible to have more than the present total number, twenty-

> 'Attorney Ben Miller of Wankegan, attorney for Fox Lake village, is now preparing an ordinance preventing the issuance of licenses to more than twenty-five in Fox Lake. As snon as it is finished it will be adopted by the board and from then on no more saloons can operate.

It was found impossible to fix the nemer of licenses preportionate to the populanon, as is done in many cities, hence the plan was adopted similar to Wankegan's, of fixing a limit regardless of population. Residents of the village feel the plan is a good one and even saloon keepers favor it. Vhile all the saloons do a good business in the summer when resorters throng the leke region, in winter there is little or no business, and it is even remarked "Why. there's a salonn for every man-who drinks in the village."

Fox lake now holds the record for number of saloons compared to population, so far as Lake county is concerned. In summer the population for a few weeks numbers thousands; in winter, there are but about 500 residents inside the village limits.

IN A JAPANESE THEATER

Capyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.) The theater has always been a favorito form of recreation among the Japanese, and especially beloved of the Japanese woman, for it is her only amusement, and the only public place where she may accompany her husband.

The theater of old Japan, with its strutting legendary heroes, fis ancient costumes, and actors who carried their. own lanterns in order to light the expressions of their faces, is practically a thing of the past. While many of the old custome still survive, modern inventions and appliances have been grafted upon them to the effect of producing some startling contrasts. The Japs, enger to grasp European ideas and fashions, have made use of some, but left many as they have been for generations.

We may go at any hour, so suppose we start at five. On our way, we are sure to see every characteristic of street life. The Japaneso, in their eagerness to adopt European ways and customs, have swallewed such a large meal they are not able to digest It; and no better illustration of this can be found than their pretentious and truly wenderful street signs. As a specimen of English as she is Japped, the following, culled from a choice, and I might say, startling, collection, is respectfully submitted. The spelling and punctuation are especially worth noting:

HOW TO APPLY PAINT.

Greatest care should be taken when painting buildings or implements which are exposed to the weather, to havo the paint applied properly. No excellence of material can make up for carelessness of application, any more than care in applying it can make poor paint wear well.

The surface to be painted should be dry and scraped and sandpapered hard and smooth. Pure white lead should be mixed with pure linseed oil, fresh for the job, and should be well brushed out, not flowed on thick. When painting is done in this manner with National Lend Company's pure white lead (trade marked with "The Dutch Boy Painter") there is every chance that the job will be satisfacthat nearly all of you would get a blue tory. White lead is capable of absolute test for purity. National Lead Company, Woodbridge Building, New York, will send a testing outfit free to any one interested.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Electrification of the railroad terminals in Chiengo is declared to be advisable and feasible, both for economy in operation and to abate the smoke unisancs.

The President will transmit to congress. without comment, the correspondence and facts relative to the controversy of the United States and Venezuela as to the claims of American citizens against the latter. It is known, however, that the President feels this country has been patient with President Castro beyond even the limits of ordinary toleration or decency, and he is sanguine that when congress has digested the facts thers will be action of some kind. The responsibility of that nction is to be left wholly in the hands of congress.

Obviously congressional opinion is at last awakened to the necessity of a thorough and scientific revision of our currency legis-Intion. The Aldrich bill has gone over to the Honse unchanged in its essential features, but improved in soveral minor details. And now a currency commission is proposed to consider the entire subject, and a measure providing for an inquiry into the changes and forms required in the banking systems of the country is promised to the senate by Mr. Aldrich. The iden is not unworthy of adoption as public sentiment on the currency question must be fuvorably developed ere any reform of a permanent nature can be instituted.

New York leads all states in road building. Its legislature has authorized $50,-000,000 bond issue for good roads, to be allutted among the different counties. To get its share each county must raise an equal amount by local taxation. Fifteen other states have lately adopted state nid for roads in one from or other. In Illinois the state furnishes material to the road commissioners in the form of stone crushed by penitentiary labor, and ships it free of charge. The worst roads are in the south, and the best are in New England. Indiana leads the northern states with 20,877 miles of gravel roads and 3,300 miles of macadam. Illinois is near the fact of the list.

Yates for the republican nomination for governor of Illinois before the primaries and efficiency. next August 8th, is such as to make the old-time politicians of the state sit up and growth of Yates sentiment among the people, who will control this time, with unstinted admiration for the man who, with ungnificent though losing lights in the last four years in Illinois politics, after an administration that, now, viewed calmly and without prejudice caused by the nonpolitical trust press, is acknowledged to have been one of the very best in the history of Illinois.

Roosevell will send a special message to still; that as the soul is more than congress in the not distant future, looking the body, and eternity than time, so to the suppression of anarchy in this country. the moral order is above the material; Some days ago the Attorney General was that justice is above power; that jusinstructed to institute nu exhaustive investigation for the purpose of ascertaining if there is sufficient authority for suppressing anarchy by the executive branch of the government, and it seems that further ennetments are necessary so that a special message is imminent President Roosevelt recommended legislation on this subject in his annual message of 1901, and only limited action was taken, congress refusing to make declaration that anarchy was an olfense against the law of nations, as the message suggested and declining to provide

For the Children

To succeed these days you must have plenty of grit, courage, strength. How is it with the children? Are they thin, pale, delicate? Do not forget Ayer's Sarsaparilla. You know it makes the blood pure and rich, and builds up the general health in every way. The children cannot possibly have good health inless the bowels are in proper condition. Correct any constitution by giving small laxative doses of Ayer's Pilis. All vegetable, sugar-coaled.

for the arrest and punishment of American citizens professing its principles. All will concur in the judgment that congress should take some such stops at the present time that will seek, at least, to prevent the recurreoce of such outrages as that at Union Square, New York, and at Chicago upon the chief of police. Such a course need not and would not violate the liberty of individual speech or of the press, but it would suppress that license which induces the veakminded to commit crime.

SYNOPSIS.

Burton H. Barnes, a wealthy American touring Corsica, rescues the young English ligutenant, Edward Gerard Anstruther, and his Corsican bride, Marina, daughter of the Paolis, from the murderous vendetta, understanding that his reward is to be the hand of the girl he loves, Enid Anstruther, sister of the English lionlenant. The four ily from Ajaccio to Marseilles on hoard the French stenmer Coostantine. The vendetta, pursues and as the quartet are about to board the train for London at Marseilles, Marina is handed a mysterious note which causes her to collapso and necessitates a postponement of the journey. Barnes gets part of the mysterious note and receives letters which inform him that he is marked by the vendetta. He employs an American detective and plans to bent the vendetta at their own game. For the purpose of securing the safety of the women Barnes arranges to have Lady Chartris lease a secluded villa at Nice to which the party is to be taken in a yacht. Barnes and Enid make arrangements for their marriage. The net tightens about Barnes, He receives a note from La Bello Blackwood, the American adventuress. Barnes hears that the man supposed to be Corregio, who followed the party on their way to the bont, was Salicett, a nephew of the couet, and that Count Corregio had been in Nice for some time prior to the party's arrival. The count warps Barnes not to marry Enid unless he would have her also involved in the murried. Soon after their wedding Barnes' touring Corsieu, rescues the young English lieutenant, Edward Gerard Anstruth derous feud. Barnes and Enid are mur-ried. Soon after their wedding Barnes bride disappears. Barnes discovers she has been kidnaped and taken to Corsica. The groom secures a fishing vessel and is about to start in pursuit of his bride's copiors when he hears a scream from the villa and rushes back to hear that Anstruther's wife," Marina, is also missing. Barnes is compelled to depart for Corsica without delay, and so he leaves the search for Marina to her husband while he goes to hunt for End; Just before Barnes' boat lands on Corsica's shore Marina is alseovered hiding in a corner of the vessel. Site explains her action by saying she has come to help Barnes resenc his wife from the Corsicans.

About four, Monsieur. Only one know how to sail ze ship. But ze night is fine and aftaire bringing me to make ze breakfast during ze darkness, ze one who knew ze coast steered us here. Zen zey drup ze anchor and cry to me: 'Cook, stay on board. You tell ze cursed Americano, Signore Barnes of New York to come to Boeognano II he would rescue his wife. We have greeting for him zere vitch he vill not forgot!' Zay nil take off zaire hats, as ze young cavaller bring upon deck your beautiful lady, who looked like a goddess, so haughty, so noble. To him as he bowed before her, she says: Monsleur Bernardo Salicett, you who were vere un gentilhomme a few days ago and have now become a kidnapper, tell your savages to keep zaire hands off me and I vill go with you.'

"To me she command as she stepped into zo boat: 'Loboeuf, have a good meal for Mr. Barnes, who vill be coming soon; Zen sho look at me with her eyes. I know she means I am not to forget something. Ah, your marice vas vaire brave. Only once in zo long night, no I listen with my cars, I hear from ze cabin a short, quick soh."

"My wife's eyes told you to remember somethlog? What was it?" asks Barnes very engerly, though his gaze is dim.

"Oh, volla! Vhen ze rufflans were preparing ze boat for her, Madame wblspered in my ear: 'Tell my husband in look in zo third drawer of zo cabin locker."

Before the last words have left the Frenchman's lips, the American is her across in this fine weather without of vision is such that, when your eyes down the companionway and has torn any trouble," answers the mate. open the drawer indicated. He hurriedly tosses aside the contents and produces a note, the superscription of which, in the dear hand he knows, makes him falter. It is simply addressed: "Mr. Burton H. Barnes," and reads: My Darling Husband: I have little time to write, for they are preparing to take me on shore in a boat. We are now anchored aff Corsien somewhere. Last evening, through some careless meanage of Thompson misinterpreted by my own eagerness, I came on board the yacht alone, thinking you had gone there before me to avold some encounter with Donella that might delay our wedding trip. A boat was waiting for mo at the landing place. In the darkness, during the short hundred yards to the yacht, I noticed nothing suspicious in the ours-men, probably because my thoughts were so entirely of you. Flying into the cabin, expecting t meet you, I heard the doors close upon me and a volco in Corsienn French say: "She is ours!" Then the slipping of bolts outside told med was a prisoner. No cries of mine or commands were heeded. The yacht got under way. Ah, what a night I've passed here in this cubin that should have been our honoymoon home, thinking of your misery when you found you had lost me. But knowing by your love that you will pursue and find me, I seed you this warning, which is of great importance.

I have learned by some careless French conversation that has drifted in to me that I am to be made the lure to bring you to the death of the vendetta in Bocognana. To me Balleatt has boasted feet shed in strong country shoes fit.

that they have notified you they take me to Corsiea. They are sure your ne-fection for me will make you follow me, rash and enreless in your agony. There Salleett means to assussimate you, think-jog by that to gain the votes of his peculinr countrymen because he lins nobly fulfilled his diabelical oath of the horrible vendette that they worship. There fore, by your love for me, my husband, I charge you not to risk your dear life unduly, and to bring with you enough friends to protect you from these as-sassins. I hear the spiosh of the boat put overboard; they will be coming for mo, so kiss the letter where I sign and you'll neet the lips of, in life or death, always.

Barnes reads this letter carefully twice. Once ho gazes up; but the sight of the entile decorated for his honeymoen, about which are seattered his wife's dainty belongings brought on board for a nuptial voyage, makes him close his misty eyes with a shudder.

Lebocuf is now calling down the companionway: "Monsieur, 1 have obeyed your wife's commands. A good meal is served on deck for you and Madame Anstruther."

He must eat to keep his strength up for the work that is ahead of him. The tries to show his appreciation of the French chef's art, but anguish is a bar to appetite?

After a moment Barnes passes Eatd's letter over to Edwin's wife. When she has rend it, he says: "I have been thinking if it wouldn't be. hetter to sall to Ajaceln and get De Belloc and some of his traopers to go with us to Becognano."

"With De Beliec and his troopers you would never find her," answers Marins. "The sight of their cavalry uniforms would be signalled up tho Valley of the Gravona; Enid would not be in Bocognane. In the mountain fastnesses of Del Oro they would hide her where you would never find her."

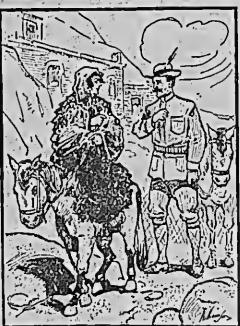

"Then some honest countrymen, from this neighborhood; they can be hired?" suggests Barnes.

"But not, by a foreigner, to strike against a Corsican," replies Marina, almost proudly. "To have any hope of finding your wife we must go alone. I'll lead you by secret paths through the mountains; on the main road did they see you coming they would ambush and kill you." Her eyes look polling booth great words on the glory eagerly upon the shore, she rises and says, resolutely: "Come!"

Barnes, more eager than she, quickly dresses himself in the simple hunting suit he has brought with him.

Then Marina runs down the companionway and secludes herself in the salon while Barnes gives his directions to Graham. "You had better return that fishing boat to Villefranche

"I am sorry, my gallant fellow, I cannot take you with me," says the behind your head. Every now and American; "only Marina ned I must then you see a woman with eyes that

"Aye; aye! Night and day I'll lock for you," answers the mate. "Now, bring the hoat alongside."

"Not yet, Monsleur," cries Lebeeut, issuing from the galley, "not without something to cat, to support you and Madame," and he produces a big haveranck filled with provisions.

"You're right. By evening we shall be lingry, if not before," answers the the butcher in turn inquired: "Have horses being used. Five are hitched American, "and it will be best to avoid as much as possible native inns." He ready!" "And so am I." And Marina trips to I ought to," replied the monarch, the deck, a pensant girl of her Island puffing out his chest. "I have shaved for use over the stones of mountain

Both are eager. Within five minutes they are in the boat, and pulled by two Scotch tars, soon land upon the rocky shore. As Marina's feet touch the soil, she looks at it passionately and murmurs bitterly: "To think that I come back to my native island with the hands of so many of the friends of my childhood against me, with so many hearts that once turned toward me turned away." Then she draws herself up and says desporately, yet proudly: "But I will show to them my hands are free of the blood of Toninsso Monaldl."

Clambering over the sen-washed rocks, they reach the green woodland, and seen through its soft foliage of llex, beech and wild eltron, trend a romantic path that lends them to the more dusty highway which skirts the coast, slightly to the south of the little quay of Sagone. This Marina says is fortunate, that they need not excite curiosity by passing through the senside village to reach the road to Vico, by which they will strike east to reach American steps alertly on deck and the vast glen hetween Monte Rotondo and Moate Del Oro.

A little while niong this road, roasting beneath the hot sun and stiffed by the dust of enrly summer, when Marina says, pointing to a farmer's house: "Stay here and I'll bargain for the use of two of the native ponies I see in his barnyard."

A few minutes of apparently excited gesticulation and talk with the peasant who is hoeing in his field, and she brings into the road two sturdy, shaggy brown ponies. Mounting astrice one of these, Corslcan fashion, Marina says almost gally: "We have the beasts for a week at 30 francs aplece. Now I feel at home again."

Upon the other Barnes would dash forward, but some very serious words from his companion stop him: "It was lucky I saw that farmer. Ho said: 'I would give you a more gentle heast. girl, had not four men three hours ogo engaged my gentle Mandalina for a lady's use. Of course, my best was at Signore Salicett's order, I had heard him speak up in the mountains at the of Corsica, which had given Franco a Bonaparte and one day would give her another."

Suddenly the girl calls: "But you ennot overtake Enid in a second," for "Oh, you must look more Corstean," the American's heels are heating a tatfeather plucked from one of his bride's | cob, and he is harrying forward muttering: "Three hours ahead of me. Perhaps we ean overtake my darling before night!"

"Don't ride so fast," exclaims his companios, galloping her pony to him. Then her voice growing very solemn. she says warningly: "From some hilltop, should we get too near, they will see us coming, and in a vendetta ambush, some knife might reach not only your heart but-Enid's. When you havo enemies in Corsiea, beware the path shead of you!"

"I have heard of it," replied the merchant, "but I never understood it was much of a success." "O, sir, but it is perfection! Give me any example you will, and I will guarantee a correet solution." A SLAT GATE.

It Will Prove Serviceable for the Barn Doorway.

Where the horse stable opens into the buggy room and it is necessary to keep the door open for ventilation I find that a small gate constructed of light material is an excellent protection against horses getting loose and injuring the buggles.

The cut herewith shows a light gate wo have in use in our horse barn. It is: very simple in construction, but serves a very important purpose. Were it not for this light gate we would find it necessary to keep the door closed between the horse stable and buggy room, thus shutting off ventilation.

The gate is hinged onto the rolling door with light strap hinges, explains a writor in Prairie Farmer, so that when the gate is not in use it swings around and fastens to the large door out of the way.

For material in making the gate we use inch strips of good pine for the horizontal pieces. The upright pieces are light strips gotten out for fence pickets.

I find a light gate of this character a good thing to keep poultry out of the barn during the summer months.

KEEP STOCK IN CONDITION.

No Time of Year When They Should Be Let Run Down.

When? Right now-to-day and tomorrow, and all the time till it comes time to let the entile out to pasture. Sometimes we may get a little careless about this. So many men say: "What hurt does it do to let the cows, go with scant rations for a few weeks in winter? By and hy they will go out to pasture and thea they can gain up again. It will not cost so much to get them in good flesh then as It. would now, and feed costs so in win-

Of course feed costs. That is n foregono conclusion. It wo keep stock, however, ought we not to be prepared to do the fair thing by it? There are some of the best reasons why, from our own standpoint, we should do this. One of these is, that if we turn the cattle nut in spring poor and weak it will take so long to get them up in good shape to do their best that we shall lose more than we shall gain by scrimping now. Wo are learning that cattle are sure to take the feed we give them if they are lean and to poor rig and lay it on their backs, first of all; then after they are in good condition they will apply the surplus to the milk-pail. It le always the surplus that we got. And there will be no surplus if we keep our cows just on the vergo of hunger. The Farmers' Voice well says that it is the cow which has been kept well that puts the money in our pockets. Cows poorly trented are our farm charges, to be maintained at the cost of what the best cows do. Thoro figuring out how r uch profit I make should be no such charges; every cow should be a producer.

LABOR OF THE HORSE.

How It Can Be Made to Make Up for Lack of Hired Help.

Some one has figured out that It costs on the average only one-half as much to feed a horse as it does to feed n man, and that the horse will do ten times the amount of work that it is possible for the man to do. If this estimate is correct, then a dollar's worth of food given the horse will produce 20 times as much results as the same amount of money will if expended in feed for a man. Therefore, when man domesticated the horse ho immensely increased his own power of securing results. When much farm with your corn. HEAVES CAUSED BY HAY.

Veterinarian Cautions Against Too Heavy Feeding.

A noted veterinarian of Canada says that one full feed per day of hay is enough for a horse; that because the work borses are busy in crop time they only get one full feed of hay every 24 hours, but in the winter are frequently allowed to stand and cat all day. He says that a horse to be in perfect health should have the stomach emptied, of the previous meal for two or three hours before he is given another. If such is not the case, digestion will not take place in a perfect manner, and disease is likely to result. There is a remarkable sympathy between the stomach and the lungs, because of the fact that the same nerve trunk supplies nerve force to hoth organs. When the stomach is deranged from improper feeding the lungs are liable to become sympathetically affected and heaves often result. Caro should also be taken that a herse should be fed no dusty or musty hay. This dust is as light as air, and the horse in breathing draws it right into the lung tissue with overy breath, and this substance, being an irritant, is very prone to develop the heaves. If no better hay can be oblained, the dust should be laid by sprinkling with water, when the herse will not breathe it, but will be swalowed with his feed and probably de him no harm; but when at all possible only bright, clean hay, free from dust, should be fed to horses. Buhtio Meaning in Poet's Criticism of Decollets Cestume.

Joaquin Miller, the poet of the Sierras, is something of a recluse and rarely comes luto San Francisco, but when he does he is made a good deal of a lion. On his last visit he was one of the guests at a rather formal dinner at a friend's house where he stayed overnight. His hostess had knewa the poet since her childheed, so she felt priviliged; next merning, to disceurse to him of the heauties of the Parisian gown sho had wern the night hefore—benutles which seemed to have escaped his observation.

Mr. Miller listened to all that she had to say and remained silent. "But didn't you really like the dress?" pleaded the lady. "Well," replied the poet, "I did like part of it well enough." The indy brightened.

"Indeed?" she said. "What part?" "The part you had on," naswered the poet; and that ended the discussion.—Lippineott's.

Slander is a Restless Evil.

Slander is a restless evil, which disturbs society, spreads dissension through cities and countries, disunites the strictest friendship; is the source of hatred and revenge; fills, wherever it enters, with disturbances and confusion, and everywhere is an enemy to peace, comfort and Christian good breeding.-Jean Baptiste Massillon.

Romance In Cement.

There is much of the romantio in the development of the "cement belt" that, to a teeming valley filled with ers who for years barely succeeded in making enough from their farms to meet the mortgage Interest suddenly, found thomselves rich beyond the most extraordinary flights of their imagination. Barren, rocky soil, upon which the wild carrot, the goldenrod and the Canada thistle were the most prellfic crops, and where the tiller of the soil more frequently than not damned the rocks which were to prove his fortune, suddenly became worth hundreds of dollars an acre. of China. During a debate in the senate on foreign affairs one day one of the senators was discussing China's somewhat precarlous position in the Russo Japanese war. "Gentleman," observed the senator, humorously, "It has always seemed to me that China is hopelessly small and helpless as compared with Russla or Japan. Anything she may have Mr. and Mrs. K. K. Cass transacted to say to the combatants is suggestive of the remark that the gamecock made to the horses.

"This game-cock, as you well know, found himself one day in a stable full of horses huge, restless steeds. Thoy were all kicking and stamping about. The cock had to dodge from right to left and from left to right to avoid being trampled to pleces. As he shot this way and that between the heavy hoofs, he kept singlag out:
